

“DISC-covery” Workshop Outline

In this ½ day “DISC-covery” workshop, participants will begin to discover

- A unique way of really cementing the current executive team synergy
- A greater understanding of themselves and the individual’s importance to the team
- A greater level of trust and honesty within the team that will produce creative and consistent results
- Skills to reduce interpersonal conflict and misunderstanding
- An understanding of people’s different reactions to situations, interactions and information for greater personal and business prosperity and achievement

It will also begin to allow participants to:

- Identify internal and external preferred communication style
- Increase communication and understanding
- Manage relationships more effectively
- Adapt to and manage people more effectively
- Increase creative output by implementing more lateral thinking techniques to challenges and opportunities
- Implement strategies for more harmonious and consistent outcomes

DISC is the world's #1 behavioural assessment, taken by millions of people every year and is estimated to be in use by 75% of Fortune 500 companies. The most powerful motivation comes from within — from our core values. Yet, very few people can articulate their own values or are aware that all values can be traced back to half a dozen primary "motivators". The WPMOT assessment provides us with a model to better understand and unlock the power behind these personal motivators.

Talent Insights is the world’s first multi-science assessment tool. Exploring two dimensions of human performance; behavioural style and personal motivators. By combining the DISC profile with the Motivators assessment (Talent Insights), we have not only HOW a person behaves but also WHY they move into action. As a double science assessment, Talent Insights provides us with two perspectives to understand each person we work with.

Therefore, we are not like most other test providers. We provide you with a multi-science approach. "Multi-science" simply means the use of more than one assessment.

Our trainers come from relevant professional business and/or media backgrounds, resulting in the fact that when people use SuccessMasters, they are entertained and educated at the same time. We believe learning needs to be fun!

SuccessMasters will show you how to change your life so that you can enjoy more fulfilling business and personal relationships, as well as achieve your goals, dreams and desires.

Workshops can be run onsite or online – the choice is yours!

